

AROUND THE WORLD IN WOODEN SHOES

HOLLAND YOUNG MAN AND HIS SISTER HIKING AROUND THE WORLD
QUAINT DRESS—YOUNG LIEUTENANT COM-PARES AMERICAN PEOPLE WITH THOSE OF HIS OWN COUNTRY—PLEASURE IS IN WORK.

Clomp-Clomp-Clomp-Clomp!

The clatter of modern shoes on the office floor caused the editor to prepare to beat a hasty retreat for it sounded like a whole army was on his trail.

"It," we referred to, turned out to be nothing more dangerous than pretty Wilhelmina Nordwall and her brother, Lieutenant Herbert P. Nordwall of Amsterdam, Holland, who in their hike around the world in wooden shoes just dropped in to call on the editor.

Togged in the quaint costumes of Holland, the two attracted much attention in their visit in the city as they walked down the street hand in hand. Her short black skirt and apron, wide girdle and Dutch cap, and the lieutenant with his red coat with brass buttons and blue trousers and both with their wooden shoes made a decidedly unusual picture in this land-lubber city where few foreigners ever get until they are so thoroughly Americanized that they discard their native costumes for cheap clothing.

When interviewed by a reporter, Lieut. Nordwall said they would "stand for" anything we would say if we would not call him Hans and her Gretchen.

Mr. Nordwall is an educated man and earned the title of Lieutenant in the army of Netherlands. Unfortunately he bursted an ear drum in a dive and decided to leave the army. His father, who is a man of considerable wealth, was angry at this and urged the boy to remain in the service, so that when Nordwall started out to see the world he had it to do on his own resources.

He visited the European countries, went to Africa and Asia and landed in America. After a hike up and down the Pacific coast he started cross country to New York. When back home his stories of his travels so interested his little sister, Wilhelmina, that she begged to accompany him on his second journey to America.

Together they "hiked" until the American silk stockings that the sister acquired allowed her to contract rheumatism and she lay five weeks in a hospital at Geneva, Ill. "She ought to have worn wool ones, anyhow," the brother says.

Wilhelmina is a sweet singer and the Lieutenant is a lecturer and together they put on entertainments in the theaters and make their own way on in the journey. Wilhelmina sings American ballads and popular songs. The public generally, she says, does not appreciate the folks songs of her country.

Mr. Nordwall says that the main difference between American people and the Dutch is that Americans work to get money to amuse themselves, while the Dutch work through necessity and, having so little money, they have learned to gain amusement from their work, with a pipe smoke as an extra treat. The women of Holland, he says, are so clean because it is easy to keep clean there and because they enjoy working. He says they are healthier because of their hard work.

While in Greencastle the two travelers were delighted to receive a box that had been left behind them in another state. Among other things the box contained a roll of collars and Lieutenant Nordwall was extremely glad. He said that he had not worn a collar for six weeks.

The two Hollanders have been in America about three years. It is their intention of remaining at least another year before finally returning to their home in Amsterdam.

From Greencastle, Lieutenant Nordwall and his sister will go to Indianapolis. After visiting the capitol city, they will make their way to Columbus, O., to make a visit with some friends that they met several months ago while traveling in the South.

DRUNKEN MEN NEARLY KILLED

CLOVERDALE MAN FINDS A

VANDALIA STATION EXPECT-

ALONG PLATFORM.

HIT BY VAN TRAIN STEPS

George Pratt of Cloverdale, who came here last Saturday to "have a good time," found a "mighty fine fella" in James Vandeventer and liked him so well that he tried to take Vandeventer back home with him with the result that both men were nearly killed under the wheels of east bound passenger train on the Vandalia railroad last Saturday evening.

Pratt became intoxicated and fell in with Vandeventer, who was also intoxicated, and they became "fast friends" in a few minutes. Pratt liked Vandeventer so well that he tried to get him to do down to Cloverdale. Vandeventer objected, but accompanied Pratt to the station. When the train came into the station Pratt seized the handles at the steps. He then grabbed Vandeventer and both went tumbling along. It looked as though they both would fall under the wheels. Pratt was struck on the head by a handle at the steps and slightly injured. The trainmen refused to allow the men to ride and the police were summoned. Vandeventer was fined $12.00 by Esquire W. N. Grimes Sunday morning, and Pratt drew a similar amount. Both men paid their fines.—Brazil Times.

A suit was filed in the Putnam county court Wednesday, in which Alonzo Todd, a carpenter residing in Floyd township, asks judgment of Earl Padgett and others, in the sum of $115.39 for work done in the erection of a barn and repairs done on the Padgett's residence.

Todd holds a mechanics lien on the property owned by Padgett in Floyd township, as security for the erection, repair and construction of a barn and residence. The lien was for the amount of $95.39 which was due June 15th, 1914.

The plaintiff sues and asks judgment in the sum of $115.39, which includes the attorneys' fees which is $20, and the foreclosure of the lien and an order for the sale of property for all proper relief.

FORMER W. C. T. U. PRESIDENT HERE SUNDAY FOR ADDRESS.

Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, of Upland, for eleven years the Indiana state president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, will deliver an address in the Locust Street Methodist Church Sunday afternoon under the direction of the Flying Squadron of America. Besides the address of Mrs. Vayhinger, a special song service has been arranged. W. C. Van Arsdell will be the chairman of the meeting.

The Flying Squadron of America is a national temperance organization founded at Columbus, Ohio, in November, 1913, by many different religious and temperance societies. It has as its object "the inauguration and execution of a great forward movement for the national destruction of the liquor traffic."

Mrs. Vayhinger's address on Sunday will deal largely with the present agitation for a state constitutional convention.

AND THIS FROM BRAZIL, WHERE BOOZE FLOWS FREE

The attention of many people was attracted this morning to a peculiar phenomena in the sky when a bright rainbow was seen to encircle the sun. Usually rainbows follow a shower and are seen extending from one point of the horizon to the opposite horizon. In this case, however, there had been no rain and the rainbow instead of forming an arch across the heavens, appeared in a complete circle about the sun at a distance of about 10 degrees from Old Sol.

Many people called the News office over the telephone and asked about the phenomena, but as the News has no astronomer on its staff, it was unable to give any solution of the peculiar rainbow.

As far as can be learned this is the first rainbow of the kind that has ever been seen here. The ring of many colors around the sun was very plain when it first appeared about 10 o'clock, but gradually grew fainter until it completely disappeared about an hour later. The sun was almost at the zenith when the phenomena manifested itself and the sky was clear of clouds except for a slight haziness. Some people believe that it is a sign probable no more than the result of peculiar atmospheric conditions.—Brazil News.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Hays and daughter, Miss Lillian, and Neil Booth left today in the Hays machine for Bay View, Mich., where they will spend several weeks this summer. They expect to make the trip to Bay View in three or four days. Several other local parties will go to Bay View for extended visits this summer.

WRIST IS CUT BY PICKPOINT

AUTIE PELFREY RECEIVES PAINFUL INJURY WHEN LABORER ACCIDENTLY STRIKES HIM ON WRIST WITH SHARP TOOL—WAS EMPLOYED AT FERN SAND WORKS.

Autie Pelfrey, who resides west of town near Fern, was the victim of a peculiar but painful accident Tuesday evening while working at the Fern Sands Works, where he was employed. While engaged on the inside of the plant with a fellow laborer in digging a bed for a storage box, Pelfrey's companion in some manner struck him on the wrist with a sharp pointed pick. The point of the tool entered the wrist at the joint in such a man-

FARMERS PLEAD NOT GUILTY TO INTOXICATION CHARGES

James Christenberry and Charles Wright, farmers residing in Madison township, were arrested by Constable Crawford Crawley at their homes west of the city Tuesday afternoon and plead not guilty to charges of intoxication, which were filed by Henry Carpenter, who resides several miles west of the city, Tuesday morning.

The filing of the affidavits in Justice of Peace Frank's Court came as a result of a drunken carousal, which Carpenter alleged Christenberry and Wright took part in Monday night. He alleges that Christenberry and Wright came to his home about midnight and kept his family awake several hours with their noise.

The case was continued and no date has been set for the trial.

ANNUAL S. C. C. PICNIC HELD TUESDAY EVENING

The annual picnic of the S. C. C.'s of this city was held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Leuteke Albin at the corner of Locust and Berry street Tuesday evening. About twenty members of the club and their guests were present at the picnic. Each member of the organization took a well filled basket of good "eats" to the Leuteke home. An elaborate picnic meal was spread on the spacious lawn. After the supper the club members and guests formed a theatre party and attended a local picture show in a body.

Those present were: Miss Mary Albaugh, Mrs. Ernest Browning, Mrs. Jesse Beemer, Miss Mary Curran, Miss Hannah Curran, Miss Ethel Daniels, Miss Hildegard Haspel, Miss Florence Miesse, Miss Jessie Pierce, Mrs. Ivan Ruark, Miss Lulu Schildmyer, Mrs. Fred Thomas, and Mrs. James Albin. The guests present were: Miss Daisy Stauch, Miss Florence King, Miss Agnes Buster, Miss Hallie Browning, Miss Hattie Leuteke, Miss Lenora Ruark, Miss Wilhelmina Tazwell of Crawfordsville, and Miss Rose Mary Brown of Terre Haute.

INDIANA PEOPLE BUY 150 AUTOS EACH DAY

State Records Show Largest Per Cent of Purchases Are Made by the Farmers—Dealers in State Number 480.

Automobiles are being sold in Indiana this summer at a rate of 150 a day, as shown by the calls for licenses at the office of the secretary of state.

The licenses issued for Indiana-owned machines so far this year number 53,511. The number of new machines being sold is believed to be considerably larger than a year ago, though there is no way to make an accurate comparison because the new automobile law, providing for annual registration, has not been in effect long enough.

Farmers Buy Most. While many autos are being delivered to buyers in the cities, the biggest per cent of the 150 machines sold daily is going to the rural districts and the small towns.

The records show there are 480 dealers engaged in the sale of automobiles in Indiana. Motorcycles sold up to last Tuesday numbered 8,597. There are 2,250 licensed chauffeurs in the state. Calls for a transfer of licenses, made where second-hand machines are sold, are being made at a rate of from two to twelve a day.

Mrs. C. N. Wilson returned to her home in Brownstown today after a several days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Columbus Alspaugh and family and Mrs. George Ensign and family of this city.

RUNAWAY BOYS ARE CAUGHT HERE

THREE LADS WHO ESCAPED FROM REFORM SCHOOL AT PLAINFIELD SATURDAY NIGHT ATTEMPT TO BREAK INTO TWO SOUTH GREENCASTLE STORES MONDAY NIGHT—ACTIONS AROUSE SUSPICION AND OFFICERS ARE CALLED.

An attempt to break into the William Peck Grocery store on south Depot street, so that they might get something to eat, proved the undoing of three scantily dressed, half starved and thoroughly worn out boys who had run away from the Plainfield Reform School last Saturday night. The lads, two of them 16 years old, and one 14, had walked all the way from Plainfield. They were barefooted and scantily dressed, when Officers John Maloney and Carl Watson found them late Monday night. When arrested the lads were attempting to break into the Browning Grocery on Hanna street.

The lads were in the country just east of Greencastle all day Monday. When night came they came to Greencastle and were around the south end. They were seen there by several people early in the evening. One man who saw them was down town later and told Officer John Maloney that he had seen three strange lads in the south part of town.

The officers told the man that three lads had escaped from Plainfield and that the three he saw might be the runaways. As the man went home he passed the Peck Grocery. The three lads were then attempting to break into the store. They had placed two planks up against the front door and had broken out the transom glass. When the man appeared the lads ran. When the man, who lives on Fox

Ridge, reached the gas plant, he telephoned to Officer Maloney telling him that he had seen the lads at the store. Officer Maloney and Officer Watson then got a buggy and drove to the store but the runaways were not there.

The officers then decided to visit other grocery stores in the south part of town. The Browning store was the first visited. In the rear of the store they found the three lads. They were huddled up in a dark corner when Officer Watson saw them. He made one grab and got two of the lads but the third escaped. The boys had cut a hole in the screen door of the Browning Grocery in an attempt to enter the store.

The officers were unable to locate the lad who had run, so they took the two they had into the buggy and took them to the Crawford restaurant, where they gave them the first good meal they had since Saturday evening. While the officers were in the restaurant, Maloney happened to look out the door and saw the third lad, who evidently had followed the buggy to the restaurant, peeping around the corner. Watson being the best runner, went after the lad and caught him after a chase of two blocks.

The third lad was then given a square meal and taken with the other two to jail. An officer from the school came early Tuesday morning and took the lads back to Plainfield.

DEPAUW PEOPLE HAVE A NARROW ESCAPE

Word has been received here that the Hamburg-American steamship Pretoria, on which Miss Minna Mattern, Mrs. Martha Geyer Degner, and Charles Scholfield, all of the DePauw university faculty, and Miss Mary Mattern, of Sandusky, Ohio, and Mrs. Scholfield, sailed for a summer's visit in Germany, collided with another ocean liner just off the coast of Halifax. For a time it was thought that the vessel was so badly damaged that it would have to return to the United States, but such was not the case. A heavy fog was the cause of the accident. It is said that another sea disaster was only averted by the discovery of danger by the officers of the Pretoria and the turning of the ship in its course just in time.

The local party of travelers will be abroad during the entire summer. Much of their time will be spent in study in foreign schools. During the last two weeks of their stay abroad the members of the party will visit many points of interest.

CROP PROSPECTS REPORTED FAIR

FARMERS IN NEAR VICINITY OF GREENCASTLE SAY THAT RECENT RAINS CAME IN TIME TO PREVENT A FAILURE IN YIELD—MUCH NEED OF MOISTURE SOUTH OF NATIONAL ROAD.

RAIN WOULD HELP CLOVER

Putnam county farmers, in the near vicinity of Greencastle at least, are generally optimistic over the prospects of fair yields in practically all of the crops of the season. It is conceded that the rains of the past two weeks came at an opportune time and that had it not been for them the conditions would have been greatly different from what they now are.

The territory north of the National road seems to have been favored by the weather man in his distribution of rain. South of this road the corn is at present suffering for a lack of moisture while that to the north seems to be in no immediate need.

The same condition prevails in the matter of the oats crop. It is practically conceded now that the crop south of the National road is almost beyond the point where much of it can be saved. Oats in the vicinity of Greencastle will make about a half crop, it is estimated.

The rye and wheat crops will yield fairly well, if present indications mean anything, but they will not produce nearly so well as was reported some five or six weeks ago. It is claimed that if the recent rains had fallen earlier the rye and wheat yield would have approached the record mark for the county.

The young clover in the county suffered some for lack of rain at the proper time but even at that the stand is considered by most farmers to be a really good one. The plants are at present at a place in their growth when a good rain would do them much good and if this is forthcoming soon, it is said that there will be an extra good yield.

Miss Dorothy Weik, of St. Louis, returned to this city Tuesday and will enter the DePauw summer school.

TARZAN OF THE APES

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey Company

He had seen many of his kind go to their deaths before the loud noise made by the little black stick in the hands of the strange white ape who lived in that wonderful lair, and Kerchak had made up his brute mind to own that death dealing contrivance and to explore the interior of the mysterious den.

He wanted to feel his teeth sink into the neck of the queer animal that he had learned to hate and fear, and because of this he came often with his tribe to reconnoiter, waiting for a time when the white ape should be off his guard.

Of late they had quit attacking or even showing themselves, for every time they had done so in the past the little stick had roared out the terrible message of death to some member of the tribe.

Today there was no sign of the man about, and from where they watched they could see that the cabin door was open. Slowly, cautiously and noiselessly they crept through the jungle toward the little cabin.

On they came until Kerchak himself slunk stealthily to the very door and peered within. Behind him were two males and then Kala, closely straining the little dead form to her breast.

Inside the den they saw the strange white ape lying half across a table, his head buried in his arms, and on the bed lay a figure covered by a salicloth, while from a tiny rustic cradle came the plaintive wailing of a babe.

Noiselessly Kerchak entered, crouching for the charge, and then John Clayton rose with a sudden start and faced them.

The sight that met his eyes must have frozen him with horror, for there, within the door, stood three great bull apes, while behind them crowded many more; how many he never knew, for his revolvers were hanging on the far wall beside his rifle and Kerchak was charging.

When Kerchak released the limp form which had been John Clayton, Lord Greystoke, he turned his attention toward the little cradle, but Kala was there before him, and when he would have grasped the child she snatched it herself, and before he could intercept her she had bolted through the door and taken refuge in a high tree.

As she took up the little live baby of Alice Clayton she dropped the dead body of her own into the empty cradle. The wail of the living had answered the call of universal motherhood within her wild breast which the dead could not still.

High up among the branches of a mighty tree she hugged the shrieking infant to her bosom, and soon the instinct that was dominant in this fierce female as it had been in the breast of his tender and beautiful mother—the instinct of mother love—reached out to the tiny man-child's half formed understanding, and he became quiet.

Then hunger closed the gap between them, and the son of an English lord and an English lady nursed at the breast of Kala, the great ape.

Once satisfied that Clayton was dead, Kerchak turned his attention to the thing which lay upon the bed, covered by a piece of salicloth.

A moment he let his fingers sink deep into the cold flesh, and then, realizing that she was already dead, he turned from her to examine the contents of the room, nor did he again molest the body of either Lady Alice or Sir John.

The rifle hanging upon the wall caught his first attention. It was for this strange, death dealing thunder stick that he had yearned for months; but, now that it was within his grasp, he scarcely had the temerity to seize it. Finally the rifle was torn from its hook and lay in the grasp of the great brute. Finding that it harmed him not, Kerchak began to examine it closely.

During all these operations the apes who had entered sat huddled near the door watching their chief, while those outside strained and crowded to catch a glimpse of what transpired within.

Suddenly Kerchak's finger closed upon the trigger, there was a deafening roar in the little room, and the apes at and beyond the door fell over one another in their wild anxiety to escape.

Kerchak was equally frightened—so frightened, in fact, that he quite forgot to throw aside the author of that fearful noise, but bolted for the door with it tightly clutched in one hand.

As he passed through the opening the front sight of the rifle caught upon the edge of the inswinging door with sufficient force to close it tightly after the fleeing ape.

When Kerchak came to a halt a short distance from the cabin and discovered that he still held the rifle he dropped it as though it had burned him, nor did he again essay to recover it. The noise had been too much for his brute nerves, but he was now quite convinced that the terrible stick was quite harmless by itself if left alone.

The cleverly constructed latch which Clayton had made for the door had sprung as Kerchak passed out, nor could the apes find means of ingress through the heavily barred windows.

Kala had not once come to earth with her little adopted babe, but now Kerchak called to her to descend with the rest, and as there was no note of anger in his voice she dropped lightly from branch to branch and joined the others on their homeward march.

Those of the apes who attempted to examine Kala's strange baby were repulsed with bared fangs and menacing growls, accompanied by words of warning from Kala.

When they assured her that they meant the child no harm she permitted them to come close, but would not allow them to touch her charge.

It was as though she knew that her baby was frail and delicate and feared lest the rough hands of her fellows might injure the little thing.

CHAPTER II. The White Ape.

TENDERLY Kala nursed her little waif, wondering silently why it did not gain strength and agility as did the little apes of other mothers. It was nearly a year from the time the little fellow came into her possession before he would walk alone, and as for climbing—my, but how stupid he was!

Kala sometimes talked with the older females about her young hopeful, but none of them could understand how a child could be so slow and backward in learning to care for itself. Why, it could not even find food alone, and more than twelve moons had passed since Kala had come upon it.

Had they known that the child had seen thirteen moons before it had come into Kala's possession they would have considered its case as absolutely hopeless.

Tublat, Kala's husband, was sorely vexed and but for the female's careful watching would have put the child out of the way.

"He will never be a great ape," he argued. "Always will you have to carry him and protect him. What good will he be to the tribe? None. Only a burden."

"Let us leave him quietly sleeping among the tall grasses, that you may bear other and stronger apes to guard us in our old age."

"Never, Broken Nose," replied Kala. "If I must carry him forever, so be it." Tublat went to Kerchak to urge him to use his authority with Kala and force her to give up little Tarzan, which was the name they had given to the tiny Lord Greystoke and which meant "white skin."

But when Kerchak spoke to her about it Kala threatened to run away from the tribe if they did not leave her in peace with the child, and as this is one of the unalienable rights of the jungle folk, if they be dissatisfied among their own people, they bothered her no more, for Kala was a fine, clean limbed young female, and they did not wish to lose her.

As Tarzan grew he made more rapid strides, so that by the time he was ten years old he was an excellent climber and on the ground could do many wonderful things which were beyond the powers of his little brothers and sisters.

In many ways did he differ from them, and they often marveled at his superior cunning, but in strength and size he was deficient, for at ten the great anthropoids were fully grown, some of them towering over six feet in height, while little Tarzan was still but a half grown boy.

Yet such a boy! From early infancy he had used his hands to swing from branch to branch after the manner of his giant mother, and as he grew older he spent hour upon hour daily speeding through the treetops with his brothers and sisters.

He could spring twenty feet across space at the dizzy heights of the forest top and grasp with unerring precision and without apparent jar a limb waving wildly in the path of an approaching tornado.

He could drop twenty feet at a stretch from limb to limb in rapid descent to the ground, or he could gain the utmost pinnacle of the loftiest tropical giant with the ease and swiftness of a squirrel. Though but ten years old, he was fully as strong as the average man of thirty and far more agile than the most practiced athlete ever becomes. And day by day his strength was increasing.

His life among the fierce apes had been happy, for his recollection held no other life, nor did he know that there existed within the universe aught else than his little forest and the wild jungle animals with which he was familiar.

He was nearly ten before he commenced to realize that a great difference existed between himself and his fellows. His little body, burned almost black by exposure, suddenly caused him feelings of intense shame, for he realized that it was entirely hairless, like some low snake or reptile.

In the higher land which his tribe frequented was a little lake, and it was here that Tarzan first saw his face in the clear, still waters of its bosom.

It was on a sultry day of the dry season that he and one of his cousins had gone down to the bank to drink. As they leaned over both little faces were mirrored on the placid pool, the fierce and terrible features of the ape beside those of the aristocratic scion of an old English house.

Tarzan was appalled. It had been bad enough to be hairless, but to own such a countenance! He wondered that the other apes could look at him at all.

So intent was he upon his personal appraisal of his features that he did not hear the parting of the tall grass behind him as a great body pushed itself stealthily through the jungle, nor did his companion, the ape, hear either, for he was drinking, and the noise of his sucking lips drowned the quiet approach of the intruder.

Not thirty paces behind the two he crouched—Sabor, the tiger—lashing his tail. Cautiously he moved a great padded paw forward, noiselessly placing it before he lifted the next. Thus he advanced, his belly low, almost touching the surface of the ground—a great cat preparing to spring upon its prey.

Now he was within ten feet of the two unsuspecting little playfellows. Carefully he drew his hind feet well up beneath his body, the great muscles rolling under the beautiful skin of black and yellow. So low he was crouching that he seemed flattened to the earth except for the upward bend of the glossy back as it gathered for the spring.

No longer the tall lashed. Quiet and straight behind him it lay.

An instant he paused thus as though turned to stone, and then, with an awful scream, he sprang.

Sabor, the tiger, was a wise hunter. To one less wise the wild alarm of his fierce cry as he sprang would have seemed a foolish thing, for could he not more surely have fallen upon his victims had he but quietly leaped without that loud shriek?

But Sabor knew well the wondrous quickness of the jungle folk and their almost unbelievable powers of hearing. To them the sudden scraping of one blade of grass across another was as effectual a warning as his loudest cry, and Sabor knew that he could not make that leap without a little noise.

His wild scream was not a warning, but instead was meant to freeze his poor victims in a paralysis of terror for the tiny fraction of an instant, which would suffice for his mighty claws to sink into their soft flesh and hold them beyond peradventure of escape.

In so far as the ape was concerned, Sabor reasoned correctly. The little fellow crouched trembling just an instant, but that instant was quite long enough to prove his undoing.

And Then, With an Awful Scream, He Sprang.

Not so, however, with Tarzan, the man-child. Before him lay the deep waters of the little lake, behind him certain death—a cruel death beneath tearing claws and rending fangs.

Tarzan had always hated water, except as a medium for quenching his thirst. He hated it because he connected it with the chill and discomfort of the torrential rains, and he feared it for the thunder and lightning and wind which accompanied it.

But of the two evils his quick mind chose the lesser, and before the great beast had covered half his leap Tarzan felt the chill waters close above his head.

He could not swim, and the water was very deep. But still he lost no particle of that self reliance and resourcefulness which were the badges of his superior being.

Rapidly he moved his hands and feet in an attempt to scramble upward, and, possibly more by chance than design, he fell into the stroke that a dog uses when swimming, so that within a few seconds his nose was above water, and he found that he could keep it there by continuing his strokes and also make progress through the water.

He was much surprised and pleased with this new acquirement which had been so suddenly thrust upon him, but he had no time for thinking much upon it.

He was now swimming parallel to the bank, and there he saw the cruel beast that would have seized him crouching upon the still form of his playmate.

The tiger was intently watching Tarzan, evidently expecting him to return to shore, but this the boy had no intention of doing.

Instead he raised his voice in the call of distress common to his tribe, adding to it the warning which would prevent would be rescuers from running into the clutches of Sabor.

Almost immediately there came an answer from the distance, and presently forty or fifty great apes swung rapidly and majestically through the trees toward the scene of tragedy.

In the van was Kala, for she had recognized the tones of her best loved, and with her was the mother of the little ape who lay dead beneath cruel Sabor.

Though more powerful and better equipped for fighting than the apes, the tiger had no desire to meet these enraged adults, and with a snarl of hatred he sprang quickly into the brush and disappeared.

Tarzan now swam to shore and clambered quickly upon dry land. The feeling of freshness and exhilaration which the cool waters had imparted to him filled his being with grateful surprise, and ever after he lost no opportunity to take a daily plunge in lake or stream or ocean when it was possible to do so.

For a long time Kala could not accustom herself to the sight, for, though her people could swim when forced to it, they did not like to enter water and never did so voluntarily.

That the huge fierce brute loved her child of another race is beyond question, and he, too, gave to the great, hairy beast all the affection that would have belonged to his fair young mother had she lived.

When he was disobedient she cuffed him. It is true, but she was never cruel to him and was more often caressing than chastising him.

Tublat, her husband, always hated Tarzan and on several occasions had come near ending his youthful career.

Tarzan's superior intelligence and cunning permitted him to invent a thousand diabolical tricks to add to the burdens of Tublat's life.

Early in his boyhood he had learned to form ropes by twisting and tying long grasses together, and with these he was forever tripping Tublat or attempting to hang him from some overhanging branch.

By constant playing and experimenting with these he learned to tie rude knots and make sliding nooses, and with these he and the younger apes amused themselves. What Tarzan did they tried to do also, but he alone originated and became proficient.

One day while playing thus Tarzan had thrown his rope at one of his fleeing companions, retaining the other end in his grasp. By accident the noose fell squarely about the running ape's neck, bringing him to a sudden and surprising halt.

Ah, here was a new game, a fine game, thought Tarzan, and immediately he attempted to repeat the trick. And thus, by painstaking and continued practice, he learned the art of roping.

Now, indeed, was the life of Tublat a living nightmare. In sleep, upon the march, night or day, he never knew when that quiet noose would slip about his neck and nearly choke the life out of him. Kala punished, Tublat swore dire vengeance, and old Kerchak took notice and warned and threatened, but all to no avail.

In Tarzan's clever little mind many thoughts revolved, and back of these was his divine power of reason.

If he could catch his fellow apes with his long arm of many grasses, why not Sabor, the tiger?

The wanderings of the tribe brought them often near the closed and silent cabin by the little landlocked harbor. To Tarzan this was always a source of never ending mystery and pleasure.

He would peek into the curtained windows or, climbing upon the roof, peer down the black depths of the chimney in a vain endeavor to solve the unknown wonders that lay within those strong walls.

It was on the next visit to the vicinity following the adventure with old Sabor that as he approached the cabin Tarzan noticed that from a distance the door appeared as though an independent part of the wall in which it was set, and for the first time it occurred to him that this might prove the means of entrance which had so long eluded him.

He was alone, as was often the case when he visited the cabin. The apes had no love for it. The story of the thunder stick, having lost nothing in the telling during these ten years, had quite surrounded the white man's deserted cabin with an atmosphere of weirdness and terror for the simians. The story of his own connection with the cabin had never been told him. In a dim, vague way had Kala explained to him that his father had been a strange white ape, but he did not know that Kala was not his own mother.

On this day he went directly to the door and spent hours examining it and fusing with the hinges, the knob and the latch. Finally he stumbled upon the right combination, and the door swung creakingly open before his astonished eyes.

For some minutes he did not dare venture within, but finally, as his eyes became accustomed to the dim light of the interior, he slowly and cautiously entered.

In the middle of the floor lay a skeleton, every vestige of flesh gone from the bones, to which still clung the moldered remnants of what had once been clothing; upon the bed lay a similar ghoulish thing, but smaller, while in a tiny cradle near by was a third, a wee mite of a skeleton.

To none of these evidences of an old tragedy did little Tarzan give but passing heed. His wild jungle life had inured him to the sight of dead and dying animals, and had he known that he was looking upon the remains of his own father and mother he would have been no more greatly moved.

The furnishings and other contents of the room it was which riveted his attention. He examined many things minutely—strange tools and weapons, books, papers, clothing—what little had withstood the ravages of time in the humid atmosphere of the jungle coast.

He opened chests and cupboards, such as did not baffle his small experience, and in these he found the contents much better preserved.

In the Middle of the Floor Lay a Skeleton.

Among other things he found a sharp hunting knife, on the keen blade of which he immediately proceeded to cut his finger. Nothing daunted, he continued his experiments, finding that he could hack and hew splinters of wood from the table and chairs with this new toy.

For a long time this amused him; but, finally tiring, he continued his explorations. In a cupboard filled with books he came across one with brightly colored pictures. It was a child's illustrated alphabet.

A is for archer.
Who shoots with a bow.
B is for boy.
His first name is Joe.

CHAPTER III. A Jungle Battle.

THE pictures in the books which Tarzan found in the cabin interested him greatly.

There were many apes with faces similar to his own, and farther over in the book he found under "M" some little monkeys such as he saw daily flitting through the trees of his primeval forest. But nowhere was pictured any of his own people. In all the book was none that resembled Kerchak or Tublat or Kala.

At first he tried to pick the little figures from the paper, but he soon saw that they were not real, though he knew not what they might be, nor had he any words to describe them.

The boats and trains and cows and horses were quite meaningless to him, but not quite so baffling as the odd little figures which appeared beneath and between the colored pictures—some strange kind of bugs he thought they might be, for many of them had legs, though nowhere could he find one with eyes and a mouth. It was his first introduction to the letters of the alphabet, and he was over ten years old.

Of course he had never before seen print, or never had spoken with any living thing which had the remotest idea that such a thing as a written language existed, and never had he seen any one reading.

So what wonder that the little boy was quite at a loss to guess the meaning of these strange figures.

Near the back of the book he found his old enemy, Sabor, the tiger, and, just above him, coiled Mistah, the snake.

Oh, it was most engrossing! Never before in all his ten years had he enjoyed anything so much. So absorbed was he that he did not note the approaching dusk until it was quite upon him.

He put the book back in the cupboard and closed the door, for he did not wish any one else to find and destroy his treasure, and as he went out into the gathering darkness he closed the great door of the cabin behind him as it had been before he discovered the secret of its lock, but before he left he had noticed the hunting knife lying where he had thrown it upon the floor, and this he picked up and took with him to show to his fellows.

He had taken scarce a dozen steps toward the jungle when a great form rose up before him from the shadows of a low bush.

At first he thought it was one of his own people, but in another instant he realized that it was a huge gorilla.

So close was he that there was no chance for flight, and little Tarzan knew that he must stand and fight for his life; for these great beasts were the deadly enemies of his tribe, and neither one nor the other ever asked or gave quarter.

Had Tarzan been a full grown bull ape of the species of his tribe he would have been more than a match for the gorilla, but being only a little English boy, though enormously muscular for such, he stood no show against his cruel antagonist. In his veins, however, flowed the blood of the best of a race of mighty fighters, and back of this was the training of his short lifetime among the fierce brutes of the jungle.

He knew no fear, as we know it; his heart beat the faster, but from the excitement and exhilaration of adventure. Had the opportunity presented itself he would have escaped, but solely because his judgment told him he was no match for the great thing which confronted him. And as flight was out of the question he faced the gorilla squarely and bravely without a tremor of a single muscle or any sign of panic.

LOCAL MEN STRIKE ANOTHER OIL WELL

LOCAL MAN WHO LEASED AN ACRE TRACT OF LAND NEAR IRVINE, KY., FINISHES WORK ON ANOTHER WELL SATURDAY AND A GOOD FLOW OF OIL IS REPORTED—WELL PRODUCES A VOLUME OF FROM 8 TO 10 BARRELS A DAY.

DRILL BEING MOVED TODAY

Another oil well sunk by C. R. Dulin and Greencastle associates, who have leased a large tract of oil land near Irvine, Ky., was finished Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Dulin stated today that the oil was of excellent quality. Although the volume of the well is not as large as that of the first, Mr. Dulin is well pleased with the result of the second well work. The flow of oil from the first well is from 15 to 20 barrels a day.

The drilling outfit was moved to another site Monday and work on another well was started immediately. The wells as they are completed are plugged up and the flow of oil is stopped. As soon as four wells are completed all the wells will be shut. The shooting of the wells, it is believed, will increase the volume over their natural flow.

The 4,000 acres of land near Irvine has been leased by C. R. Dulin and several other local men. Mr. Dulin holds a lease on one-half of the large tract and the remainder is divided among the others. Mr. Dulin also has leased a 4,000 acre tract of land adjoining the Irvine tract and will start work on it some time next fall.

If the four wells sunk by the local people produce a good flow of oil after they have been shot, the shareholders in the land which has been leased, will incorporate and will continue drilling. The lease is perpetuated as long as oil is produced on the tract. Mr. Dulin stated today that it is probable that wells will be sunk for natural gas some time next fall. He said that every indication was that gas was abundant in that section of the country.

The local men who are interested in the Irvine oil land are C. R. Dulin, Edward Houck, Jonathan Houck, Oliver Houck, Bascom O'Hair, Talbot Christie, Ed Hamilton, S. C. Prev, Harry Maxwell, Rev. E. G. Shouse and Lewis Zaring. Several of these men were at Irvine Saturday when the second well was completed.

DRUNK IS GATHERED IN BY POLICEMAN WATSON

Staggering from one side of pavement to the other, waving a beer bottle over his head and shouting at the top of his voice, was the condition of Policeman Carlos Watson found Richard White, who resides on Morton avenue, Sunday morning about 2 o'clock. White had got on the outside of too much booze and was unable to control his feelings. He was arrested on the east side of the square by Policeman Watson, and taken to jail. He was arraigned in Mayor Cooper's court this morning at 9 o'clock and was fined $1 and costs which amounted to $11. He was unable to pay his fine and was taken to jail.

PUTNAM WOOL GROWERS MAKING DELIVERIES

O. J. Larkin of Belle Union received wool Thursday for shipment from the members of the Putnam County Wool Growers' Association. The product is being delivered at the Vandalia freight depot.

According to Mr. Larkin the delivery this year is approximately thirty per cent. short of what it was last year. Shortly after noon that day eight hundred fleeces, or an equivalent of approximately five thousand pounds, had been received. While the amount delivered this year is not so large as that of last year, the quality of this year's product is considerably better. The price of 24¢ cents per pound that was paid is also in excess of what they growers received a year ago.

Married at Carmel.

The marriage of Guy K. Masten, of Coatesville, and Miss Edith Hershel, an accomplished and charming young lady, of Carmel, Ind., was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents in Carmel Sunday afternoon, June 7, at four o'clock, the Rev. Bond, of Danville, officiating. It was while building the Carnegie library at that place last winter that Guy met Miss Hershel. The couple will reside in Coatesville, with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Masten, where the groom is in the lumber and contracting business with his father. The parents of the contracting parties and Rev. Bond and wife were the only persons present to witness the ceremonies. Coatesville Herald.

The groom is well-known in this city. He is a graduate of the local high school and has many friends here to extend their congratulations.

Miss Nell Edmundson returned to her home in Clayton Friday after a several days' visit with Miss Irene Hammond of this city.

MAJORITY OPPOSE THE NEW BUILDING

EIGHTY-THREE RESIDENTS OF THIRD WARD SIGN PETITION AGAINST CONSTRUCTION OF NEW "JUNIOR" HIGH SCHOOL—IS BEING CIRCULATED BY SPENCER MAHAN—MANY MORE WILL BE SEEN.

FIVE FAVOR IMPROVEMENT

Property owners of the third ward are decidedly opposed to the construction of a new "junior" high school building, for which the sale of bonds was advertised Thursday by the Greencastle school board. This is the belief of Spencer Mahan, a resident of south Locust street, who has been circulating a petition in that district in the interest of those opposed to the action of the school officials. The petition when completed will be presented to the board for its consideration.

According to Mr. Mahan, 104 residents of the ward have been approached with the petition. Of this number 83 have signed against the construction of the building; five have shown that they are in favor of the proposed improvement, while sixteen refused to express themselves as either for or against it. Mr. Mahan states that all but four of those who signed against the building are property owners. These four, however, are tax payers.

The direct cause of the circulation of the petition, according to Mr. Mahan, was the statement of members of the school board that a majority of the property owners and tax payers of Greencastle are in favor of constructing a new school building. The third ward petition was designed to ascertain to what extent this statement is true.

ROACHDALE CREAMERY, TOO, HAS BEEN CLOSED

The Commercial Creamery Co., closed the doors of its plant on Saturday last. Mr. Ape, of Lafayette, who has had charge of the work, left for his home Monday. The failure of this institution may be attributed to several causes, the direct ones, however, being the fact that cream and milk did not come to the plant in sufficient quantities to insure a steady run, also the product failed to find a ready market at prices which would leave a margin of profit.

Just what the outcome will be is not known at this time, yet it is believed that it will be necessary to reorganize before the plant can resume operations.—Roachdale News.

LAST OF STRAWBERRIES MARKED SATURDAY

According to local growers and dealers, Saturday's delivery of strawberries practically ended the crop for this season. The few berries remaining will be saved by the growers for their own use.

The shortage of the berry crop this year is attributed to the lack of rain during the growing season. It is said that if a good rain had fallen at the proper time, one of the largest crops in recent years would have been the result as the prospects were excellent earlier in the season. The recent rains came too late to do much good towards increasing the yield.

Mrs. Alice Kroff and children left Friday for Ada, O., where they will make their home.

A. B. HANNA BUYS THE ADER BUILDING.

The F. D. Ader building on east Washington street was sold Thursday to Andrew Hanna of this city. The consideration in the deal as shown by the records in the County Recorder's office is $12,500.

The building is occupied by the F. G. Gilmore store, the Werneke Jewelry store, Dr. W. G. Overstreet's office and the office of T. C. Grooms. Mr. Hanna stated that morning that he had purchased the building solely as an investment and that he did not contemplate any changes in the tenants nor did he contemplate any changes in the building. F. D. Ader, a former Greencastle man, but now residing in Chicago, was represented in the negotiations by Mrs. Ader, who has been here for several days. Mr. Hanna took immediate possession of the building.

Death of Mrs. Shumaker.

The death of Mrs. Mary Ellen Shumaker, a well-known resident of Monroe township, occurred at her home 6 miles north of the city, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Her death occurred after several months' illness. She is survived by a husband and six children. The funeral was held at the Brick Chapel Church Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The interment was in the Brick Chapel cemetery.

A. C. Bridges and son, Milton, left Friday afternoon for their home in New York after spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hammond and family on south Indiana street.

FATAL ACCIDENT MARS ROACHDALE EVENT SATURDAY

WENDELL McCRAY, AGE 19, CRUSHED SO BADLY WHEN ANIMAL HE WAS RIDING STUMBLED AND FELL THAT HIS DEATH OCCURRED A FEW HOURS AFTER—WAS TO RIDE HORSE IN RUNNING RACE WHICH WAS CLOSING EVENT OF HORSE SHOW.

THE FUNERAL WAS TODAY

The Roachdale horse show held Saturday was marred by an accident, which resulted in the death of Wendell McCray, age 19, the son of the late Charley McCray. The lad lived with his widowed mother in Roachdale.

The death of the lad occurred at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening, following an accident at a little after 4 o'clock, when a horse he was riding stumbled and fell, throwing the young man under it. He was so badly crushed that he lived only a few hours.

Young McCray, who had been conducting a stand during the day, was one of the boys who was to ride a horse in a running race, which was the last event of the day. Just before the event was to be called, McCray, accompanied by Elmer Young, another young man who was to ride in the race, mounted their horses and went to a back street, known as Railroad street, where the race was to be run.

Already quite a crowd had gathered along the street. While running his horse the young man attempted to turn it suddenly and the horse went into the crowd. The animal struck a young man by the name of Galbreath, knocking him down. This caused the animal to fall. As the horse fell, McCray was thrown from the saddle and fell prostrate on the ground. The horse fell on him, the animal crushing the lad's chest.

McCray was assisted to his feet by persons nearby, and asked for his hat, which had been lost from his head. His injuries then were not considered serious. He was taken to his home, however, and a physician summoned. The lad was so badly crushed, however, that death soon followed. The funeral was held at noon Monday at the home.

THREE LABORERS INJURED AT A. & C. STONE QUARRY

A blast at the A. & C. Stone quarry east of the city Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock, resulted in the injury of three laborers. A pop shot was fired and the rock thrown by the explosion of powder threw stones through a small shanty, in which the laborers took refuge, and injured the laborers.

The injured men are: A. J. Edmundson, colored, lower jaw broken, right arm badly bruised and lacerated at the shoulder and wrist; Frank Celestonia, an Italian, left side of head badly lacerated and cut and left shoulder and arm badly bruised; Frank Chavis, severe gash on right side of head.

After the fuse had been lighted on the shot the laborers ran to a small shanty near the quarry. The force of the explosion threw huge stones through the shanty, which resulted in their injury. About 15 laborers were in the shanty when the accident happened. The building was demolished and it is considered miraculous how so many of the laborers escaped injury.

Edmundson, who resides in the east part of the city, is probably the most seriously injured of the laborers. He is reported to be improving and his injuries will not prove serious.

MISS PEARL O'HAIR ENTERTAINS ART CLUB

Miss Pearl O'Hair was hostess this afternoon from 3 to 7 o'clock of the Keranic Art Club of Indianapolis at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. O'Hair on east Seminary street. The entertainment of the afternoon was a contest in which the different members of the club were required to construct and furnish one room of a miniature pasteboard house, a program of vocal and instrumental music, a two-course luncheon served out doors in picnic style, and an automobile ride about the city. Thirteen members of the club were present. The visitors returned to Indianapolis on the 7 o'clock interurban.

Mrs. Lawrence Murphy, who was operated on for appendicitis at the Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis last week, is recovering nicely.

CREAMERY FUTURE STILL UNDECIDED

STOCKHOLDERS FAIL TO REACH AN AGREEMENT IN MEETING HELD ON SATURDAY—TWO PLANS ARE SUGGESTED—RECEIVER MAY BE ASKED—SOME WOULD ASSESS EACH STOCKHOLDER $10.

TO INVESTIGATE FURTHER

Members of the Putnam County Creamery Association who met at the city library on Saturday were divided in their opinions as to the best course to pursue in settling up the business of the local creamery that was lately closed down by the men who had it under lease. The creamery now is in the hands of the stockholders.

Two courses were considered by the stockholders. The one which was considered the most likely before the meeting was the placing of the concern in the hands of a receiver. This plan was supported by several who said that the quickest way of settlement was the best. The other plan was the payment of $10 a share by the stockholders, the money to go to pay one-half of the indebtedness, and the subsequent sale of the creamery plant to pay the rest. The latter plan was considered the strongest at the meeting and it is likely that a canvass will be made of the membership to see if all are willing to take this action.

According to the report of O. L. Jones, treasurer, the indebtedness of the association is in the neighborhood of $1074. Of this amount, $290 is owed to stockholders for cream while $600 is the amount of a note for which the association, through three of its members as endorsers, is liable. The plan of assessing each stockholder $10 was suggested as a method by which those who endorsed the note would be protected.

WILL MEET CLOVERDALE TEAM THERE NEXT FRIDAY

A baseball team has been organized in this city and games will be played with several of the strong amateur teams of the state. A game has been scheduled with the fast Cloverdale team to be played in that town next Friday afternoon. The Cloverdale team has played an excellent brand of baseball this year and has one of the best teams in this section of the state. The local team will line up as follows: Edwards, catcher; Stoner and Moore, pitcher; Grover Thomas, first base; Burton, second base; Anderson, shortstop; O. Hanneman, third base; Monnett, left field; C. Stegmiller, center field; Atwood, right field.

NEEDED REPAIRS FOR CITY LIBRARY

DEFECTIVE TILE IN ROOF WILL BE REPLACED AND INTERIOR TO BE OVERHAULED AND REPAIRED DURING SUMMER MONTHS—FIRST IMPROVEMENTS SINCE BUILDING WAS ERECTED ELEVEN YEARS AGO.

NEW BOOKS TO COME SOON

Work will be started soon, it was announced Friday, upon several needed improvements to Greencastle city library. As soon as new tile can be received from the factory in Illinois, the roof will be repaired. Besides this the interior of the building will be completely overhauled and some of the walls that have been damaged by water will be repaired. The cement walk in front of the library has already been repaired.

The proposed work on the library building will be the first extensive improvements that have been made in the eleven years since it was built. It is likely that this attention would not have to paid even now had it not been for the roof giving way. This was due to no fault of local people but was caused by the poor quality of the tile that the manufacturer furnished the contractors. It is understood that these manufacturers have offered to replace the tile that has proven defective. While the intended improvements will be somewhat extensive the cost to the library board will not be large.

As soon as the improvements are made on the library roof so that they will not be endangered by water, several new and valuable volumes will be received by Miss Belle Hanna, the city librarian.

GOVERNOR IS AROUSED.

May Recommend the University's Removal Unless Water Situation Improves.

Governor Ralston, aroused because of the water situation at Bloomington Thursday declared that he is considering the question of asking the next General Assembly to change the location of Indiana University. He at least will ask the Legislature to investigate the water question unless the citizens get busy and remedy the situation.

"The water situation at Bloomington is very serious," said the Governor. "I feel that it can not be trifled with longer. I regret deeply the apparent indifference to this situation on the part of the citizens of Bloomington. I do not want to be harsh in what I say, but it seems to me they do not fully appreciate the serious consequences that may result to the student body growing out of a water famine. I have about made up my mind, as Governor, to ask the Legislature to take notice of this situation and if necessary to remove the university from its present site. I am seriously turning the matter over in my mind. Further comment by me is unnecessary at this time."—Indianapolis News.

Bids for University.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., June 11.—J. W. Caswell, president of the Commercial Club, today telegraphed Governor Ralston offering Huntington as the proper place to locate the State University in the event of its removal from Bloomington on account of the inadequate water supply.

PLANS MONUMENT TO TEXAS GERMANS

Deeds of Pioneers from Fatherland to be Commemorated in Lone Star State

$81,000.00 HAS BEEN RAISED

$5,000 Offered to Sculptor of World for the Best Design Submitted—German Population Always a Factor in Politics of State.

Austin, Tex.—The erection of a magnificent monument to commemorate the deeds of German pioneers of Texas and to recognize the important part the Germans played in the development and upbuilding of the State in the early days is now a certainty.

Of the $100,000 to be used in building the monument $81,000 has already been raised. The greater part of this amount was subscribed in Germany.
It is proposed that the Germans of Texas raise the remainder by $1 subscriptions.

Plans for the memorial, which, it is proposed to erect, call for a monument with an area of 250x250 feet
at the base and a height of 100 feet.
The base is to be built of Texas granite and the figure of bronze, for which it is estimated about 200 pounds of metal will be needed. If the offer of one company of Germany is accepted to contribute the bronze and of another German company to cast and ship the figure free of cost to Galveston, a large expense will be saved the Texas Germans.

This amount will probably be added to the outlay for the stone and sculpture work. As soon as the memorial fund has been completed, a sum of $5,000 will be offered to both European and American sculptors for the best design submitted.

The site of the monument has not been decided upon. Prof. Frank Renard, of Sherman, is one of the prime movers in the project, and for this reason Sherman will be a strong contender. It was through Prof.
Renard's efforts that such large contributions were made in Germany for the memorial. San Antonio, however, has put forth a claim. It has been pointed out that owing to the large number of Germans in Southwest Texas, San Antonio is the logical site for the monument.

The monument is to commemorate the deeds of early German frontiersmen, fighters, farmers, statesmen and educators of Texas. Much of the history of the Lone Star State has been made by Germans, and it is to preserve the record of their deeds that their countrymen and descendants have planned the monument.

The Germans who came to Texas in the early days were not of the immigrant class, but were mostly successful, prosperous men in their communities. The majority of the early pioneers were professional men.
There were many doctors, lawyers and engineers among them. Coming into a thinly populated section and among strangers they made many sacrifices.

The German population has always been a strong factor in the politics of the State. In South Texas there are many smaller communities which are almost exclusively German. New Braunfels, a thriving town of 5,000, is one of the largest of the German settlements in the State. At this place German was spoken among the inhabitants to the exclusion of the English for many years and is still the dominant language.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD.

POULTRY-PICKING FRAME.

Holds Fowl Tightly and Feathers Are Plucked with Ease.

Game dealers will find part of their work, at least, greatly facilitated by the invention of a Massachusetts man.
This invention is a poultry-picking frame and any poultryer will at once appreciate its advantages.

It consists in the first place of two arms extending from the wall, where they are screwed. From the upper arm hangs a cross-piece, depending from a spring, while the lower arm has a member, adjustable to different lengths, adapted to hold the head of the fowl. The legs of the bird are held in the upper bracket and its head in the lower one. It is then in a position where its feathers may be plucked rapidly and easily, the spring in the upper bracket permitting the necessary elasticity. Only a poultryer who has picked thousands of chickens and other fowl under the disadvantages of the old method, where he either had to hold the bird with one hand or tie it up and have it flop around under his touch, can appreciate the full merits of this frame.

Work in the Poultry Yard.

Wet feed in wooden troughs nearly always produces bowel trouble.

If the young chicks show signs of gapes, change them to other grounds
at once.

Milk should always be fed in metal pans that can be washed and scalded afterward.

Better go without a garden than without chickens if you have no other range for them.

More young chickens die from overcrowding in brooders and coops at night than from any other cause.

A very little artificial heat in the brooder is sufficient, and this should not be turned on except in cold, damp weather.

It costs no more to raise thoroughbred chicks than scrubs, and the aristocrats will bring four or five times as much money.

Do not forget that the natural food of chickens is grain and meat. They will get their meat in bugs and worms
if they have the opportunity.

The lazy, good-natured hen does not make as good a mother as a cranky fighter, provided the latter is not so nervous as to keep running about all the time.

Whenever you see young chicks crowd around their keeper without fear, feeding from his hand and climbing upon his person, be sure they are well managed.

Left without proper shelter, we have seen as many as 100 young chicks piled on top of one another in a fence corner at night, with from 5 to 15 dead ones in the morning.

Doubtless your experience last spring has convinced you that the brooder beats the hen every time, both in the saving of temper and the production of chicks.

A Lean-to Poultry House.

The above represents a very convenient and comfortable poultry house built against a stable or other outbuilding. The portion adjoining the other wall is eight feet high, and the lowest part of roof is six feet. The roosts and dropping boards are set parallel with the yards, and a partition separates the two houses, so that they may each have a yard, as shown in illustration.

The nest boxes are placed under the dropping boards and the straw and litter are kept on the floors of the houses.

Of course we prefer the separate scratching shed, but when something cheap, designed for utility, is wanted
then the above is most admirably suited. It may be built any size desired, and the mast will be much less than that of a separate house and yards.

It takes 31 days to hatch goose eggs, ten days longer than with those of the hen.

Short Sermons FOR A Sunday Half-Hour

Theme:

WHEN A MAN SEES GOD.

BY THE REV. IDELL H. WOOD.

Text: Isaiah vi:1. In the year that King Uzziah died I saw the Lord.

When a man sees God, a religious experience begins. When Moses saw the burning bush he saw also Jehovah, and from that hour his spiritual history became the inspiration of the world. The first sound of the voice and the first touch of the hand of God made Jeremiah a prophet. The disciples knew the joy of their Lord when first they saw Him. A greater than the twelve apostles turned from a bigoted persecutor to a Christian preacher when he met Jesus on the way to Damascus. Ten thousand times ten thousand are striking harps of gold and joining in redemption's songs because the day of a new heaven and a new earth began to dawn when they caught a glimpse for the first time of the trailing garments of the Divine One.

When a man sees God he has seen the greatest sight in the world. We may climb glacier gleaming mountains, cross delectable rivers, admire earthly Paradises. There is a greater sight. Until one says, "I have seen the Lord," the greatest sight is missed and the eye cannot be satisfied with seeing nor the ear surfeited with hearing. If you have seen this great sight, though travel may be restricted, the eye grows dim and the ear-drum thickens, you can still find compensation for the loss of all other things.

Other men saw a funeral procession, the crape and the funeral pall.
This man saw not the funeral but the Lord; not the dead monarch but the everliving King of Kings and Lord of Lords. Men are prone to look to some Uzziah, empire builder, victor in war, practical architect in peace. When victory is on the banners, everything including religion, must be at its height. The dream of prosperity dissolves. Governments fall, political parties suffer upheaval, business failures come like tidal waves; an Appomattox and Uzziah is spotted with leprosy. Then to the vision of the believer! It will abide. It affirms God reigns. He sits upon the throne clad in brightness, angels, principal-ties and powers about him. Choring seraphim sing His praise and earth rocks and shakes at the presence of the Lord. The lone watcher was told of coming disasters, gloom for brightness, failure for success, disaster for joy, heaviness for praise, ruin for a nation.

God is not far away, in Him we live and move and have our being. Let song and singer and service remind us "He is here," then the walls will recede to the brim of the horizon, the roof expand into the dome of heaven, the singers become seraphim,
and heaven and earth sing His praise.

When a man sees the Lord, the lowly worshiper kneels before a holy God. Uzziah the king had in-truded into the temple. He went in, angry at the remonstrating priests.
While his face was still flushed, a white spot appeared. The people cried,
he is a leper, and drove him out.
Here, where God rebukes, He reveals himself. No wonder we cry out, "Woe is me, for I am undone."

When we compare ourselves with others, we take pride in attainment and despise others. Compare ourselves with God, who dwells in dazzling light, and from whose face heaven and earth flee away. He is higher than the highest heaven as well as deeper than the lowest depths. If we ascend to heaven He is there. How low we bow before the Holy One.

When a man sees the Lord, he finds duty and power to do that duty.
God takes no advantage of His own height. His altar fires are always burning and the coals are ever hot.
Angel voices whisper, lo this hath touched thy lips and thou art forgiven.
The forgiven penitent, the purified believer shall then hear God's call, the age long persuasion to a never-ending war, a bugle summons to battle. It says, who will go for us?
Whom shall I send? Shall we not answer, here am I, send me.

Does any one called to a duty fear
he will not succeed. He who sits upon the throne empowers for service. No task without the strength, no duty without the power. He who hath begun a good work in you will perform it.

God never calls a man or a church to duty but what that duty can be done. We can do with God's help what we ought to do. God is able to make all grace abound unto you, that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound unto every good work.

Is the Father hard to know, behold
then the Son, no longer thorn pierced, nail gashed, but glory crowned. His face shining. He shares with His Father the throne and His voice of many waters declares: All power is mine, go to thy task.

As thy days thy strength shall be.
Lo, I am with you all the days, to the end of your life, to the end of the age, to the end of the world! Behold
a King commands. Shall the servant hesitate to obey?

The Flower Mission Meeting.

The annual flower-mission program of the W. C. T. U. was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Raser Bittles. Mrs. Hattie Moore who has superintended that department for twenty-five years, gave her annual report of work done by her department and offered practical suggestions for beautifying the city by means of individual effort in the culture of flowers. Mrs. Moore sends flowers and plants to hospitals, to strangers, to the church and elsewhere; she and others also distribute clothing, food, etc., to a large number of people. The good done in a quiet way is inestimable, but those who know Mrs. Moore best are able to appreciate to some extent the value of her services to the community.

Aside from the report by Mrs.
Moore and the business of the afternoon, parts were taken on the program by Mrs. Bittles, Miss Lenore Webb, little Emilouise Gerhardt, who recited "At the Concert" and "Soap," and William Riley, who sang "The Slumber Song." During an enjoyable social hour, refreshments were served by the hostess.

FINANCE PROHIBITING FIREWORKS IS SUGGESTED BY THE FIRE MARSHAL

With a view to decreasing the loss of life and property, resulting from "celebrations" of the Fourth of July, the state fire marshal is mailing this week to the clerks of all Indiana cities a folder containing a comprehensive ordinance, prohibiting the discharge or firing of fireworks and their storage.

This ordinance has been framed by the National Fire Protection Association, of which the Indiana Inspection Bureau is a member, and the state fire marshal is suggesting that it be passed at once by all Indiana cities and towns. It is planned, however, that the ordinance be made effective immediately after July 4, since Indiana merchants in most cases, have already laid in their supply of fireworks for this year's "celebration."

It is believed that the public interest may be more readily gained at this time in such a measure, and that, though, in order to protect the merchants the ordinance would not be effective until after the Fourth, the effect of its agitation would have a wholesome effect at once.

Many Cities in Line.

Other cities are gradually prohibiting the discharge of fireworks on the Fourth of July, and are having recourse to other forms of celebration. One of the most notable results of this policy is that shown in Washington, D. C., where the operation of a prohibitive ordinance eliminated any injuries incident to the celebration of the Fourth.

In 1908, when fireworks were not prohibited, 104 persons were treated in Washington hospitals, as a result of the Fourth. In the following year, 1909, when the prohibitive ordinance was in force, not a single patient was treated for Fourth of July injuries in any of the city's hospitals.

"This same result can be achieved in the cities and towns of Indiana," says Fire Marshal Longley, "if our people will introduce and pass a prohibitive ordinance in their councils. It is proper to be patriotic, and there are many forms in which our patriotism may be manifest without being based on injury, death and property loss. Fireworks lead inevitably to these ends—and the price is too high. Fireworks Mean Injuries.

"If fireworks are used, there will be serious injuries, if not deaths, as a result. It is bound to be. No one knows in advance just who the victims will be. But if we knew to a certainty that a member of our family, or a dear friend, were to be a victim, no time would be lost in bringing about a condition which would make the injury impossible. We are taking chances just as long as the discharge of fireworks is permitted. There will be victims. We don't know where or at what minute. The one way to protect our families, our friends—and the public as well, is to have that a prohibitive ordinance such as being suggested, is at once passed. Then we will have a "safe" Fourth of July—and not until then."

SPECIAL $10,000 PRIZE FOR AMERICAN WINNER.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 17.—To stimulate the interest of American manufacturers in racing, and to prevent a repetition of the victory scored by Europe in the last Indianapolis five-hundred-mile race, the San Antonio (Tex.) Auto Club has inaugurated a movement for the establishment of a national $10,000 trophy, to be offered the next American car winning the event. A substantial sum has been offered by the club itself, with the suggestion that other subscriptions be called for, through the medium of some prominent trade magazine, as Motor Age, for instance. With a little energy and perseverance, it is believed, no difficulty in raising the necessary cash will be encountered.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT CRUSADE.

Economic Importance of Good Highways Becoming Known.

The economic importance of good roads is becoming more thoroughly demonstrated with every succeeding year, and throughout a constantly widening territory. The movement for state aid and state regulation of roads which began in a small way but a few years ago, has grown until there are now 23 states in which some kind of measure of aid, or co-operation with either towns, counties or individuals is practiced by the state.

The Good Roads Magazine in its issue of February, 1908, published in its annual review of the road situation a table which had been compiled by the Office of Public Roads, which gave the data concerning the roads of the country for the year 1904. At that time out of 2,151,000 miles of public roads in the country 38,600 miles had been surfaced with stone, 108,200 with special material, making the improved roads 7.14 per cent. of the total.

In the report of that office for 1908, it is estimated that the macadam roads have increased 12 1-2 per cent., making 43,450 miles; the gravel 15 per cent. to 124,468 miles; the special materials 25 per cent. to 8,512 miles. The average cost of macadam has been estimated at $4,500 per mile, gravel at $1,500 and other surfacing material at $1,000.

There are about 1,975,000 miles of earth road which it is estimated has cost for grading, culverts, bridges, etc., about $500 per mile. The right of way of these roads is worth, at acreage valuation as given in the census reports, $342,000,000, making a total value of $1,720,589,000 for all of the roads of the country.

Experimental roads have been constructed in various sections, for the purpose of determining what materials and methods are most likely to meet the changed conditions of traffic brought about by the high-speed automobile. In several states exhaustive experimentation has been going on with different kinds of tar and asphalt combinations for this purpose.

New York's Disadvantage.

In comparing the cost of highway construction in various states, New York appears at a disadvantage. In Massachusetts, from 1895 to 1907, there were built 558 miles of road at a cost of $7,663 per mile; in Connecticut, between 1899 and 1906, the cost was $6,072 per mile; New Jersey, from 1894 to 1907, paid $4,676 per mile, while according to the report of the Engineer and Surveyor of New York, the roads under contract at the beginning of 1909 was $20, and the contract price, plus special agreements, amounted to $4,817,488, or $9,265 per mile; and there is awaiting contract 1,038 miles of road at an estimated cost of $10,824,910, or an average of $10,326 per mile. "It is to be hoped that, under the new highway commission which will soon come into existence, this state of things may be remedied."

Use of Oil on Earth Roads.

The Illinois Highway Commission has undertaken experiments in the treatment of earth roads with oil in an endeavor to construct a waterproof covering sufficiently durable to withstand traffic. Two sections of road have been constructed, one on a light clay soil and the other on a black sticky soil. So far both sections give promise of success. It remains to be seen if the durability of the roads will warrant the cost. The treatment required about two and one-half to three gallons per square yard, making the cost not less than 30 to 40 cents per square yard complete.

California's Plan.

A bill has been introduced in the California legislature at the request of the Governor, and with the approval of the California Good Roads association, providing for submitting to the people a proposition to vote for an $18,000,000 bond issue for state road purposes. Another bill, similarly presented, provides money and regulations for mapping out a system and getting ready for work. The work is to be under control of the state department of engineering.

Will Lose Out.

The country is fast to build good roads is inevitably going to lose out in the prosperity game; the farmer is going to the market that gives him the easiest haul, even though it is a longer one. If he can carry ten miles away on a single trip, he is surely going to that market in preference to one only ten miles away where he can haul but five bales at a load.

An effort is being made to organize Good Roads Clubs in every county in Georgia. By common consent, the Rural Mail Carriers, of whom there are about 1,500 in the state, are taking the lead in the agitation and forming the nucleus for the thoroughly perfected state organization which is aimed at.

The use of oil and tar in road construction is attracting the attention of road builders the world over, particularly as the effect of modern motor traffic has completely changed the conditions of wear on roads that suffer any great amount of this kind of traffic.

NO OCCASION FOR HILARITY.

As the Matter Was Weighed by the Pessimistic Father.

"George," exclaimed Mrs. Young, husband, with a radiant smile, "baby has a tooth!"

"Has he?" was the response, in a tone which betrayed no emotion. "You don't seem surprised."

"I'm not surprised. All babies have first teeth. If ours didn't have any I'd manage to work up some excitement, maybe."

"I thought you'd be ever so pleased and happy about it."

"No; I don't see that it's any occasion for especial congratulation. The baby has my deepest sympathy."

"What for?"

"For having his first tooth. He has just struck the opening chapter of a long story of trouble. Pretty soon he'll have other teeth."

"Of course he will!"

"Every one he cuts will hurt him. Then his second teeth will come along and push these out. That will hurt again. Some of the new ones will grow crooked, as likely as not, and he will have to go to the dentist and have a block and tackle adjusted to them to haul them into line. Then he'll cut his wisdom teeth. They will hurt a lot. After that he'll have to go to the dentist and let him drill holes and hammer until his face feels like a great palpitating stone quarry. I shouldn't like him to go through life without teeth. But I must say that I don't see any occasion for the customary hilarity over an event that means so much in the way of sorrow and humiliation."

The Lesser Evil.

He—I don't see how she could possibly be siller. She giggles so constantly.

She—Well, if she didn't giggle all the time she might talk and perhaps that would be worse.—Catholic Standard.

The Shoe Pinched Him.

"At a banquet the late Senator Gorman," said a newspaper correspondent "was once rated passionately by a western drover who thought himself accused of corruption, when as a matter of fact he had not been accused at all."

"Senator Gorman got up and explained that he had made no accusation against the other."

"Why," he went on, with a loud laugh, "you remind me, friend, of old Harry Dorsay of Sassafraz."

"Then he explained that Harry Dorsay, at the age of seventy-two, married a young wife. A Sunday or two after the wedding a widower asked the minister to pray for him, as his own wife had just died. The minister in his prayer, therefore, did not fail to remember 'our aged and grieving brother, upon whom the heavy hand of sore affliction has so lately fallen.'

"At these words old Harry Dorsay, red and snorting with rage, rose from beside his girl wife."

"It may be a sore affliction," he growled audibly, as he left the church, "but I'll be hanged if any man going to pray for me in public that way."

A Substitute.

Little Helen, aged four, was in a frightful predicament. The nurse, carrying the cherished two-weeks-old baby up and down before the house, had paused to show the new infant to the bishop, who had asked to look at it. And then the tall, grave bishop, of whom Helen stood greatly in awe had unexpectedly asked the little girl to give him the baby.

How in the world to refuse a request made by such an awe-inspiring person as the bishop the child did not know. But presently she wrinkled her small countenance shrewdly, moved closer to the petitioner, and said, ingratiatingly, "I'll let you have the next."—Harper's Weekly.

Now the Answer.

A barrister, well known and rather a bore, although he had a fair practice, contracted a curious habit of beginning his questions in cross-examination of a witness with the words:—

"Now, sir, I am going to put a question to you, and I don't care which way you answer it."

Mr. Justice Maule grew to hate this formula so much that, meeting the barrister on his way to court, the learned judge accosted him in this wise:—

"Now, Jones, I am going to put a question to you, and I don't care a twopenny-bit which way you answer it. How are you?"

Word From Br'er Williams.

"Some er de preachers is tryin' ter preach hell out de Bible; but you better be on yo' guard an' see whar it lights!"

PORPOISES IN AQUARIUM

The Only Ones in Captivity, Having Been Shipped From Cape Hatteras to New York.

New York—Nine porpoises have been placed in the big center pool of the aquarium, and are the only living porpoises in confinement. They were caught off Cape Hatteras, N. C., at the one porpoise fishery the American coasts boasts. After their confinement for three days in the narrow crates, they took wildly to the water and raised a tempest in the big pool, rolling and spouting and swimming incessantly.

Four times in the past the director of the aquarium, has tried to keep a live porpoise, but none of his captives has lived more than a few months, as each of them died from the effects of injuries received in transit. Joseph K. Nye, of New Bedford, Mass., who owns the fishery at Cape Hatteras offered to supply Dr. Thompson with the porpoises on the beach as soon as they were caught, and the New York Zoological Association paid the expenses of getting them to the city.

The pool in the center of the building, which is thirty feet in diameter and five feet deep, was selected as their home. In it were fifteen large fish, several 300-pound groupers, a number of bird drum fish and one sturgeon six feet long. The aquarium attendants, with nets, poles and hooks, spent three thrilling hours catching these fish and transferring them in safety to other pools.

The porpoises arrived, two in a crate. The smallest of them is five feet long and the largest eight feet. In weight they range from 200 to 400 pounds. Thus, although small porpoises, they are of considerable size, and it was no easy work for a dozen hands to get them from their crates to the pool. Swimming, rolling and rising to spout side by side almost simultaneously, they soon created a splashing and flying of waves and spray that will not stop as long as the porpoises live.

CUPID AIDED BY PHONOGRAPH.

But Letter Answering Girl's Note Comes Too Late.

West Orange, N. J.—A proposal of marriage from a widower with eleven children has been received by Miss Jessie Cosgrove, who was formerly employed in the phonograph record works here.

A few years ago, for a joke, Miss Cosgrove wrote a note on a piece of paper which she inserted in a record of "Where the River Shannon Flows." There was a large demand for these records in Ireland and Miss Cosgrove, who is soon to be married, received the proposal from Dennis O'Finn of West Meath, Ireland, who wants a good mother for his eleven children.

FINDS EIGHT SKELETONS.

Discovery Made by Iowa Farmer Recalls the Bender Murders.

Sidney, Iowa—While Sam Godsey, living near Folsom in Mills county, was spading the ground near the rear of his home, he uncovered eight human skeletons. It is said that a boarding house was conducted on the place forty years ago. The finding of the skeletons recalls the work of the notorious Bender family in Southern Kansas, about forty years ago. The Benders murdered people whom they had given lodging for the night. They suddenly disappeared and an investigation resulted in the gruesome find of fifteen or more bodies, buried on the premises.

ROBBERS DRINK CHURCH WINE.

Eat Communion Bread and Make Coffee in Kitchen in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn.—Thieves broke into a church at night, stole silver spoons and a baptismal outfit, drank the communion wine and devoured the bread. Not being content with the sacred beverage, the men mixed their drinks with hot coffee that they prepared in the church kitchen. Two used cups were found on the pastor's desk in an adjoining room.

At 72 Takes Up Athletics.

Paris—Auguste Rodin, the sculptor, though 73 years old, announced his intention of going to Reims to take the course in athletics provided by the College of Sports, the national institution for training Olympic athletes. Rodin is the president of the college and his greatest desire is to see France beat all nations save the United States in 1916 at Berlin. He declares America hopelessly outclasses other countries in athletics. His purpose in going to Reims is double, to benefit his own health and get a line on what France is doing to prepare for 1916.

STOLE TIN FOIL FROM MARSHAL

CHARLEY TRAIL, WHO WAS EMPLOYED IN JUNK YARD BY JOHN COOPER, CONFESSES THEFT AND IS SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR ONE YEAR.

SENTENCE IS SUSPENDED

Charley Trail, age 34, who resides in south Greencastle, was sentenced to the State Prison at Michigan City to serve a term of from 1 to 8 years Thursday morning by Judge Hughes of the Putnam Circuit Court, when he confessed having stolen a small amount of tin foil from his employer, Marshal John Cooper, who owns a junk yard on Franklin street. Judge Hughes suspended the sentence imposed on Trail and he was released on a promise of good behavior.

Trail has been in the employ of John Cooper at the junk yard for several years. On several occasions he has been charged with petty thefts by Mr. Cooper, but no prosecutions resulted. The theft of the tin foil from Mr. Cooper's place of business occurred last Saturday. Mr. Cooper noticed the loss and immediately made an investigation. He suspected Trail and the latter was arrested Thursday morning by Marshal Cooper. After a severe examination and questioning Trail weakened and confessed the theft. He admitted stealing 7 or 8 pounds of tin foil and said he had sold the stolen goods to Roy Ragan, manager of the Greencastle Produce company on north Jackson street. Other petty thefts were also confessed.

Trail is married and has one child. He and his family are in ordinary circumstances. Judge Hughes suspended the sentence in order to prevent the wife and child from being left destitute with no means with which to make a living.

SLASHES HER THROAT WITH POCKET KNIFE

BELLE UNION MAN IS CHARGED WITH ASSAULT AND BATTERY WITH INTENT TO KILL ON MRS. OLLIE SPRIGGS OF BRAZIL.

Abraham L. McCammack, age 23, of Belle Union, was arrested in Brazil about 11:30 o'clock Friday night, following a murderous attack on Mrs. Ollie Spriggs. The woman's throat was slashed with a pocket knife, following a quarrel with McCammack. The wound is more than four inches long and is across the left side of the neck and throat. Eleven stitches were necessary to sew up the wound. Although the condition of the woman is serious, it is believed that she will recover.

McCammack was arrested by officers, Tiffey and Wagner, on the downtown streets, soon after the attack. When arrested his hands were covered with blood. McCammack was intoxicated when arrested. As the officers approached him, he drew the same knife with which he had cut Mrs. Spriggs, and exclaimed: "How would you like to have me use this knife on you." The officers disarmed the man and took him to the police station, where he was charged with assault and battery with intent to murder.

This morning he denied having cut the woman, but later stated that he was so drunk that he did not know what he had done.

McCammack and a companion, whose name is said to be Simmons, arrived in Brazil at 5:30 o'clock Friday evening. They immediately started to making the rounds of the saloons. One of the men stated that they each drank at least twenty-five glasses of beer. Later in the evening McCammack asked to be directed to the home of Mrs. Spriggs, who is said to be of questionable reputation.

ATTACK OCCURRED AT NEAR MIDNIGHT FRIDAY AT WOMAN'S HOME—VICTIM PROBABLY WILL RECOVER.

It is said that when McCammack reached the home, he found no one there. Taking his knife he slashed the screen door and entered the house. When Mrs. Spriggs, who was accompanied by Lillian Bierce, reached her home she found McCammack there. She ordered him to leave and he did so. A few minutes later, he returned, however, and a quarrel followed. After having cut the woman McCammack left.

A physician was called and the woman's injuries were dressed. As the physician was dressing the wound, McCammack returned to the house and, looking through a window, watched the physician at his work. He then went down town, where he was arrested.

McCammack told the police that he was a son of James McCammack of Belle Union and that he had recently been given his discharge from the United States army.

KNIFE USED IN A NORTH END FIGHT

CHARLEY KING AND ARTIE BOSWELL HAVE A "RUN-IN" AT THE MONON RESTAURANT ON SATURDAY NIGHT—BOSWELL BADLY BEATEN BY KING, WHO ACCUSES BOSWELL OF ATTEMPTING TO SLASH HIM WITH KNIFE.

ONE WARRANT SWORN OUT

Artie Boswell, a young man who resides just north of town on the Rockville road, received a severe beating at the hands of Charley King, a Greencastle young man, in a fight which occurred at the Monon restaurant in north Greencastle Saturday night.

The two men had trouble in the restaurant and, according to King's story, Boswell attempted to cut him with a pocket knife. King says that when Boswell attacked him with the knife he knocked him down. Boswell was knocked down several times during the trouble, it is said.

King was before the mayor Monday morning and was questioned about the trouble. He took the coat he had worn Saturday night to the mayor's office to show the mayor several cuts in the back of the coat, which King says were made when Boswell attempted to cut him. Boswell was so badly beaten up that he was unable to appear before the mayor.

A warrant was sworn out charging Boswell with assault and battery with intent to kill. The affidavit was sworn to by King. Boswell will be arrested as soon as he is able to leave his bed and the case will be prosecuted in the Putnam Circuit Court.

Persons who witnessed the fight state that Boswell was most severely beaten by King. The latter alleges that Boswell was intoxicated when he attacked him with the knife.

PASTOR REVIEWS MODERN UNREST

REV. BECK, OF LOCUST STREET METHODIST CHURCH, APPLIES PRESENT-DAY PROBLEMS TO BIBLICAL INCIDENTS CONNECTED WITH PARABLES OF LOAVES AND FISHES—OUTGROWTH OF DEPAUW COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS.

CHRISTIAN LIFE THE REMEDY

With the parable of the loaves and fishes and its related incidents as a basis of his discussion, the Rev. B. D. Beck, pastor of the Locust Street Methodist Church, gave a practical application of the Biblical story to the present day life of the people of his country in his sermon Sunday morning. The sermon was partly an outgrowth of the commencement address delivered in Meharry Hall on Wednesday by President Thwing of Western Reserve university.

Rev. Beck's text was the fourteenth verse of the sixteenth chapter of Matthew, "They need not depart, give ye them to eat." In the first place the pastor spoke of the multitude going into the desert, not for physical but for mental and spiritual food. Later in the day Jesus healed their sick and taught them, and then in the evening he fed their hunger. In this manner their every need was supplied.

Rev. Beck next spoke of the restless multitudes that exist today in the educational, political and religious worlds. In the former scholars are disagreed everywhere as to the proper aim of education. The political world, too, is all unsettled as is evidenced by the large number of political parties and the continual change of men in their political affiliations. The church, too, is being attacked on all sides both by the outsider and by its own members. This is shown by the large number of people who each year turn to some other substitute for the Christian church.

"To all these people," said Rev. Beck, "Jesus is saying, you need not go away. He is able to meet the needs in all fields." The close of the sermon was a charge to the congregation to try and convince the dissatisfied that the life of greatest contentment is the Christian life.

SERVICES AT AIRDOME
DURING SUMMER MONTHS

That union meetings of the five Protestant churches of Greencastle will be held at the Airdome during the summer months, was practically decided at a meeting of the different pastors at the city library Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The meetings, which will begin on the first Sunday of July, will be addressed by the pastors of the city. None of the services will be of great length and it is thought that the interest of the church going public will thus be maintained during the hot weather. Special music will also be provided. Another meeting of the pastors will be held soon to complete arrangements for the proposed meetings.

James L. Randel and Dr. T. A. Sigler were in Spencer Sunday to attend the funeral of Dr. Archer. Dr. Sigler was an honorary pall-bearer at the services. Dr. Archer was Democratic chairman of his district and a veterinarian of prominence in Indiana.

Sunset and evening star,
And oh! clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea;
Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark.

For though, from out our bourne of time and space,
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar.

CONFIRMED PROOF.

Residents of Greencastle Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of this vicinity who so testified years ago, now say the results were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Greencastle sufferers.

Mrs. M. Shelley, South St., Danville, Ind., says: "I suffered for a long time from backache that robbed me of strength and energy. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a supply and began taking them. Since then I have not had lumbago and my kidneys have acted properly."

Re-Endorsement.
One June 6, 1912, Mrs. Shelley added: "My former public statement in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills was all right in every particular. I am glad to confirm all I said about this remedy."

Why Suffer from Rheumatism?
When relief from rheumatic pains may be had at so small a cost it is surprising that anyone should fail to avail himself of it. Joseph Capparelli, Canastota, N. Y., suffered intensely with pains due to rheumatism in his limbs for a long time. A friend told him about Chamberlain's Liniment. One application relieved him wonderfully, and a few days' treatment effected a cure. Many others have found quick relief by applying this liniment. For sale by all dealers.

PAGEANTS AND PATRIOTIC PROGRAMS ASSURE SAFE "FOURTH" IN MANY CITIES

The increasing interest of the people of Indiana in a "safe and sane" Fourth of July is, as the time draws near, being evidenced at the office of the state fire marshal.

School officials, municipal officials and various organizations are communicating with the fire marshal, expressing their determination to prevent the customary injuries, property loss and noise of the "old-time" celebration, and are asking for suggestions relative to other forms of patriotic observance.

In Indianapolis the Parent-Teacher Associations, and other organizations are behind a movement for a safe and quiet Fourth of July.

At Greencastle, members of the town's women's clubs, are interested in a similar movement, as is the superintendent of schools. In Irvington, Shelbyville and other cities arrangements are now being made for "safe" celebrations of the Fourth, and many other cities are expected to do likewise.

Here Are Suggestions.

In reply to a request for suggestions for celebrating the Fourth, the state fire marshal has, in a letter to John W. Kendall, superintendent of schools at Greencastle, given a list of booklets and pamphlets which may be obtained at a small cost by any interested person. These booklets and pamphlets are published by the Russell Sage Foundation, New York City, and are offered at a nominal cost, as follows:

Record 31: A Safer, Saner Fourth of July: Plan approved by the Municipal Conference of the Playground Congress for celebrating Independence Day. 29 pages, illustrated; 5 cents.

Record 97: A Safe and Patriotic Fourth of July: Practical suggestions for the celebration of Independence Day. Prepared by a committee of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs. 24 pages; 5 cents.

Record 105: How the Fourth was Celebrated in 1911: For the use of committees preparing programs, the best features of all the Fourth of July Celebrations in 1911 have been put together in this publication. Typical ordinances and state laws are also included. 54 pages, illustrated; 10 cents.

The Community Drama.

Record 114: Celebrating the Fourth of July by Means of Pageantry: This pamphlet includes a consideration of the practicability of the pageant or community-drama for the celebration of July Fourth, and two-out-ones, one of a celebration, the other of a pageant, which can be adapted to suit special conditions. It also includes an article on music for Independence Day celebrations by Arthur Farwell, who for two years has been supervisor of municipal concerts for New York City.

Record 129: Independence Day Legislation and Celebration Suggestions: These suggestions have been gathered from a study of state laws and city ordinances governing the manufacture, sale and use of fireworks, and from programs prepared by local committees. 36 pages, illustrated; 10 cents.

These booklets and pamphlets, in the opinion of the fire marshal, would offer definite suggestions for proper celebrations in any city or town. They can be obtained by addressing the Russell Sage Foundation.

MISS WALDEN BECOMES BRIDE OF FILMORE YOUNG MAN

Miss Beulah Walden, of Greencastle, and Raymond Siddons, of Filmore, were married at the home of the bride's father, Lemuel Walden, 502 Elm street, Saturday night at 8 o'clock, the Rev. A. M. Immediately after the ceremony, the young couple left for Indianapolis, where they will be the guests of friends for several days. They will make their home for the present with the bride's father on Elm street.

HUNDRED OPPOSE JUNIOR BUILDING

PETITION IN THIRD WARD AGAINST PROPOSED NEW HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING WILL BE PRESENTED TO THE SCHOOL BOARD SOON—ONLY EIGHT OUT OF 128 PEOPLE APPROACHED SAY THEY ARE IN FAVOR OF THE NEW IMPROVEMENT.

CONSIDERED A FAIR TEST

One hundred property owners and tax payers of the third ward have signed a petition against the proposed construction of a new "junior" high school building in Greencastle. This petition has been circulated during the past week by Spencer Mahan, of 611 south Locust street.

According to Mr. Mahan, 128 people have been approached with the petition. Of this number, only eight have expressed themselves as being in favor of the proposed building while twenty have refused to express their preference either one way or the other.

Although only a part of the people in the third ward have been seen, Mr. Mahan will not attempt to secure any more signatures. It was his original intention, he says, to secure only one hundred and since this number is considered a fair test of the wishes of the third ward people, nothing further will be done.

The third ward petition and the signatures which Mr. Mahan secured, follows:

We, the undersigned, citizens and tax payers of the city of Greencastle oppose the building of a high school building or a junior high school building at this time for the reason that there is no need whatever for such a building; and respectfully ask that the Honorable School Board of the City of Greencastle stop further proceedings.

READ THESE LETTERS

MR. C. ROBINSON, Whitman, Neb., says: "I bought an 'OLD HICKORY' 7 years ago last fall. It has never seen a scratch, and the tires are still tight. Whenever I need another wagon it will surely be an 'OLD HICKORY'."

MR. ED WINTERMUTH, Route No. 1, Dorchester, Neb., says: "I know this, I have four different makes of wagons tried against the 'OLD HICKORY' hauling three ton loads at Exton, and the 'OLD HICKORY' came out best."

MR. T. F. BUCHER, Route No. 1, Wheeland, Okla., says: "I am the owner of one of your 'OLD HICKORY' wagons which I purchased 20 years ago at Lexington, and it will hold up as much as four horses will pull yet."

MR. CLAUD BAGBY, Farmer, Wabash, Ind., says: "I have used 'OLD HICKORY' wagons a great deal and consider there is no wagon compared with them for light running and lasting qualities. I must have another wagon soon and nothing suits me but the 'OLD HICKORY'."

MR. T. D. HICKEY, Gretna, Neb., says: "I have one of your 'OLD HICKORY' wagons that I have used 24 years, and it is a good wagon yet."

Remember that the cost of a wagon depends on how many years it will last, and what the repair expense is. The cost of an 'OLD HICKORY' wagon is the first price spread out over twenty, twenty-five, thirty, thirty-five or forty years. Repair expense is minimum.

SCALP ITCHED AND BURNED

Scarcely any Hair on Head. Terrible Itching. Also Bothered With Pimples and Blackheads on Face. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured Both Troubles.

Greenwood, Ind. — "First my hair began to fall, then my scalp itched and burned when I became warm. I had pimples on my scalp; my hair was falling out gradually until I had scarcely any hair on my head. I couldn't keep the dandruff off at all. My hair was dry and lifeless and I lost rest at night from the terrible itching sensation. I would pull my hair off and scratch my head any place I happened to be."

"For several years I was bothered with pimples on my face. Some of them were hard red spots, some were full of matter, and many blackheads. I was always picking at them and caused them to be sore. They made my face look so badly I was ashamed to be seen."

"I tried washing my head with Cuticura Soap, dried without rinsing, then put the Cuticura Ointment on and rubbed it into the scalp. I applied the Cuticura Soap and Ointment the same each week until cured. Three months' use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment has made my face as smooth and clean as can be." (Signed) C. M. Hamilton, Sept. 24, 1912.

Though life's chain has one link, riven This world's wealth cannot restore Yet this thought sweet balm hath given:
